Ackley, Iowa, Sept. 21.—California may have its flower festivals and Colorado its fruit festivals, but the juicy, fragrant sauerkraut will continue to hold its kindly sway in this section of Iowa. It had its day of glory today, when several thousand people gathered here today to celebrate "Sauerkraut Day" and to pay homage to the principal product of this section. Free entertainments of all kinds were given all day. A dozen barrels of kraut and more than 1,000 pounds of viennas formed the chief items of the big free dinner provided for the visitors. The town was gayly decorated and everyone made merry. These big doings were all in praise of the cabbage crop this year, and fully up to the expectation of the growers.

DRUNKENNESS A Curable Disease

Eminent Physicians and Scientific Men Agree That It Should be Treated as Such.

Drunkenness is a progressive disease. The moderate drinker is not satisfied with two or three drinks a day, the craving for more and more becomes irresistible as the disease advances; the result is Chronic Alcoholism.

thousands right in their own homes drunkenness and has given such un-

FAMILY REUNION WAS ATTENDED BY MANY

First Annual Gathering of Descendants of Elder John Crandall Held Tuesday.

Milton, Sept. 23.—More than one hundred and fifty of the descendants of Elder John Crandall of England, Massachusetts Bay Colony, Newport and Westerly, R. I., held their first annual reunion on the college campus Tuesday, Sept. 22. A permanent organization of the Wisconsin Crandall family was effected with the following officers for the coming year: President, Prof. Albert H. Crandall of Chicago college; vice president, Chas.
Crandall and Dr. Grace A. Crandall, Crandall and Mrs. Rosevelt A. Crandall and Orville G. Crandall of Milton Jun-eion, Lyle Crandall of Edgerton, Mrs. Abbie Crandall of Albion, Paul H. Crandall and Rev. M. G. Stillman of WalwORTH; secretary and treasurer, C. Geo.
Crandall, Milton.

An exceptionally fine dinner was served under the efficient management of the committee, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F.
Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Orville G.
Crandall, with the assistance of many others, the whole company being seated at tables at once in the shade of the trees just east of the Whitford Memorial hall.

Two large photographic groups were taken after dinner, the first including the whole number present and the second those having the Crandall name.

The most interesting feature of the occasion was the address by Prof. A.
H. Crandall on the early history of the Crandall family in America. Prof.
Crandall and Elwin G. Davis of Centerville, R. I., have been engaged for fully thirty years in the study of the genealogy and the collection of data for future publication. They have collected and classified about twelve thousand names of persons descended from Eld. John Crandall and have several thousand others still unclassified about which they are seeking information. Prof. Crandall discussed the conditions under which the settlement of Rhode Island took place and the character and influence of Elder John Crandall and his associates. To-bius Saunders, Robert Burdick, Samuel Burton, John and Joseph Clarke, Samuel Hubbard, Roger Williams and others, in the founding of the first colony in which real religious liberty was a fundamental part of the charter.
He brought out the part taken by the Crandalls in the war of the Revolution and showed their influence in the social and religious progress of the country during especially Providence and Reuben Crandall in their connection with the anti-slavery movement.
He gave the names of Eld. John's children who head the various Crandall lines of which the Joseph and Peter lines were chiefly represented in the Milton gathering.

The following is a nearly complete list of the Crandall descendants present, the names being arranged in groups according to relationship, the first group including the family of Henry B. Crandall, one of the earliest settlers of Milton. The third group includes the families of Josiah A.
and Paul B. Crandall, brothers, so many of the two families having intermarried that they cannot be separated without repeating names. The last group includes miscellaneous representatives of the family here, unclassified, but all of whom can be traced back to the founder of the family
in various lines:

ANSWER TO BRYAN FROM PRESIDENT

TAKES UP PRAIRIE STATE OIL AND GAS CASE.

HE SCORES GOV. HASKELL

Declares Him Unfit for Association with Patriotic and Moral Men
—Hot Reply from the Oklahoma.

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt Wednesday night, following upon a prolonged conference with members of the cabinet at the White House, prepared and gave out his reply to William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate, relative to W. R. Hearst's charges that Gov. Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic campaign committee, had represented Standard Oil interests both in Ohio and Oklahoma.

Mr. Bryan had demanded proof of the charges, promising that in the event of their substantiation Gov. Haskell would be eliminated from the campaign.

Dismissing the Ohio case, which involved an allegation of attempted bribery, with the explanation that he had made no direct charge against Gov. Haskell as regards that particular instance, President Roosevelt takes up the matter of the Prairie State Oil & Gas Company, and argues that Gov. Haskell's action in stopping legal proceedings begun by the attorney general of Oklahoma demonstrates conclusively that he was controlled by the great corporation to which the Oklahoma company was subsidiary.

Declares Haskell Unworthy.
After contrasting Mr. Bryan's defense of Gov. Haskell with Judge Taft's reputation of foraker in connection with the Hearst charges against the Ohio senator, the president proceeds to declare that Gov. Haskell's "utter unwillingness for association with any man anxious to appeal to the American people on a moral issue, has been abundantly shown by other acts of his as governor of Oklahoma."

The president condemns Gov. Haskell's conduct in connection with various matters as disgraceful and scandalous, and calls special attention to what he describes as "prostituting to base purposes the state university."

Haskell Makes Reply.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 24.—Gov. C. N. Haskell Wednesday night issued a statement in reply to President Roosevelt's letter to William J. Bryan, dealing with four specific charges against Mr. Haskell, namely, that he is subservient to Standard Oil, that he voted a child labor bill; that he dealt extensively in Creek Indian lands, and that he had allowed politics to dominate him in the removal of members of the faculty of the state university and the appointment of others to succeed them.

Gov. Haskell took up the four charges as dwelt upon by President Roosevelt in turn, dealing with each in a characteristic manner.

"The Prairie Oil & Gas Company charges Gov. Haskell declared to be a 'joke on Roosevelt's stupidity,' asserting that he had done nothing which would confer upon the Standard Oil subsidiary company more authority than it already possessed under a franchise granted it by Secretary Mitchell.

Declares He Acted Properly.
Continuing, Gov. Haskell says: "President Roosevelt comes to Oklahoma and finds a substitute for his Ohio failure. Does he, in the case of the state against the Prairie Oil & Gas Company which he complains I compelled to be dissolved?"

"Yes, I did have it dissolved. We all know that the Prairie company is a Standard Oil offshoot, and don't forget the president claims to have known this also, and I charge that the political allies, Hearst and Roosevelt, both knew that I acted properly."

"First, the Prairie Oil Company got its franchise in the state not from me, but from Roosevelt's secretary of the interior, long before statehood began, and had its main line built and operating, and congress in our statehood bill was careful to declare that our new state when organized must respect all such vested rights and existing franchises. That was all I did, and the federal courts stood ready to call me down if I violated the Roosevelt territorial franchises."

Sarcasm and Abuse.

"The president comes to the local affairs of our state and usually me for vetoing a child labor bill. True, I did so, simply because the bill went too far and included things not desired by our people. Union labor representatives approved my veto. I hope the president will survive this veto of a local bill and permit us to run our local affairs."

"The president complains that we removed certain professors from our state university, our three state normal schools and preparatory school in violation of civil service rules. That is, the president in his usual impetuosity and reckless disregard of others, mistakes the facts. Less than one-fifth of the faculties are changed. All changes were for good cause other than politics and done by boards of regents and not by the governor."

His Indian Land Suits.

"The president complains that there are several suits pending against me to reclaim Creek Indian land. The president should have gone further and said that I was not a dealer in Indian land and only came in as a sub-contractor of some 'sham' oil company."

land bases appear to be and apparently are the victims of political chicanery which the president can better explain than I.

"In short, the president and Mr. Hearst picked the wrong man and are now driven into ward politics rather than surrender like men."

"The president assumes that all Oklahomans are grafters because his territorial associates justified that assumption; that all ex-railroad contractors are bad just because Paul Morton needed his protecting arm; that we all in Oklahoma violate the civil service law just because Mr. Roosevelt removed the best United States marshal we ever had, the only reason being that he voted for a good Democrat instead of a bad Republican, and then the president appointed his cousin to fill the vacancy."

Want Haskell to Resign.
New York, Sept. 24.—It became known at Democratic national headquarters Wednesday night that several committee men are preparing to use every influence to bring about the removal of Gov. Charles N. Haskell from the office of treasurer of the national committee.

This is a result of the publication of charges that Mr. Haskell, as governor of Oklahoma, declined to permit the state to prosecute the Prairie Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company.

FILIBUSTERS ARE EXPOSED.

Alleged Plans of Expedition Against Columbia Published.

Boston, Sept. 24.—The Post publishes the disclosure of an alleged filibustering expedition which intended to start from this city on October 1, composed of 600 men fully armed and equipped for the overthrow of the United States of Columbia.

Attention was first called to the proposed expedition by advertisements in local newspapers several months ago calling for recent graduates of the United States navy and army preferred. The advertisements were signed merely "W. A. D." A reporter of the paper in question claims to have enlisted as a recruit and secured the information of the expedition.

Offices, it is claimed, were opened in Boston, Worcester and Lynn and 600 men were secured. The men were to receive $15 monthly until departure, then $30. The recruiting, it is alleged, was under the direction of A. W. Blanchard, a mining engineer with offices in New York.

ADE RAYMER IS ACQUITTED.

Verdict of Not Guilty in First Springfield Riot Case.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 24.—The case of Abo Raymer was given to the jury at 5:40, p. m., Wednesday and court took a recess. At nine o'clock the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Raymer was as white as a sheet when the jury filed into court. As soon as the verdict was announced, he grasped the hand of each juror and made a speech thanking them. While Raymer was talking to the jurors, his sister, Mrs. Max Alberts of Boston, Mass., who came to see her brother, shed tears of joy.

As this is the first of the riot cases, involving a total of 117 indictments returned by the grand jury, it is considered quite significant.

BURIED IN RED-HOT BRICKS.

Tragic Fate of Two Men at Kenmare, North Dakota.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 24.—Slowly rousing to death under tons of red-hot bricks, in plain view of their comrades, who were unable to assist them, E. W. Drake, 38, and Clarence Bailey met a tragic death at Kenmare Wednesday. The big kiln of the Kenmare Brick & Coal Company burst when but ten hours from completion. Drake, who was the manager of the plant, was buried up to his arms in the red-hot pile, and it was not for over 30 minutes that he could be reached by the rescuers. Bailey, the 17-year-old son of a prominent farmer, was completely entombed and was not found for an hour. His body was roasted to a crisp.

Shot Dead by Yaquis.

Nogales, Ariz., Sept. 24.—Particulars have been received of a killing by Yaquis in a suburb of Nogales, Mex. Rafael J. Ruiz, son of a prominent banker, with Francisco Morales, brother of Don Arturo Morales, mayor of Guaymas, was returning from Santa Margarita ranch in a carriage, when within two leagues of the ranch and about an equal distance from the city Yaquis fired a volley from ambush, killing Ruiz.

Goodwin Charges Only Desertion.
Reno, Nev., Sept. 24.—Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, instructed his attorneys Wednesday to permit the representative of a local newspaper to see the sealed complaint for divorce against his wife, Maxine Elliott, which he has filed here. The complaint is simply one of desertion for over one year, and contains nothing of a sensational character.

Gas in a Wall Kills Three.

Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 24.—A report from Stanley states that three firemen were killed by gas in a wall that they were digging on the farm of a man named Erickson, eight miles from that place. In digging, they struck natural gas and were immediately overcome.

Killed by Fall from Window.
New York, Sept. 24.—Dr. John A. Hegeman, formerly a practicing physician of Passaic, N. J., and for the past few years member of a real estate firm in this city, was killed Wednesday night by falling out of a window of his apartment on the fourth floor of an apartment house in Seventy-ninth street.

CRUISER YANKEE ON SPINDLE ROCK

WARSHIP GOES ASHORE NEAR BUZZARDS BAY.

WRECKERS GO TO HER AID

Vessel, Which is a Product of the Spanish-American War, is Seriously Damaged—Holes in Her Hull.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 24.—The United States cruiser Yankee struck on Spindle Rock, near the western entrance to Buzzards bay, during a fog Wednesday, breaking several holes in her hull on the port side. She was still afloat and fast Wednesday night.

Several tugs attempted to release the cruiser in the afternoon, but without success, and additional help was sent for. The naval collier Lebanon, a wrecking outfit and two tugs, have been started from the New York navy yard to the Yankee's assistance, and the naval collier Nero, which is on her way to Boston, will also be asked to come to the aid of the Yankee.

The fog was still very thick in Buzzards bay at night, but the sea was smooth and the Yankee was apparently in no immediate danger.

Cruiser Badly Damaged.
Washington, Sept. 24.—Late dispatches received at the navy department show that the cruiser Yankee, which went ashore at the entrance of Buzzards bay, is seriously injured, and it is feared that unless she is floated before heavy weather sets in she may prove a total loss. There are a number of punctures in the bottom of the vessel, some of the frames are bent and a forward compartment is full of water.

Bought for Spanish War.
The Yankee's armament is made up principally of three-inch guns, of which there are about a dozen. The Yankee is a product of the Spanish-American war, when she was purchased from one of the coastwise lines at a price approximating $500,000. During that war she had aboard the New York naval militia, in command of Rear Admiral (then Captain) W. H. Brownson.

A board of inquiry will be appointed to determine the responsibility and cause of the accident, and upon its findings will depend the question whether one or more of the officers will be court-martialed.

BRYAN TALKS MUCH IN OHIO.

Makes Twelve Speeches to Big Crowds
in Buckeye State.

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—Twelve speeches to enormous crowds marked the second entry of William J. Bryan into Ohio during the present campaign. His concluding speech was made here Wednesday night to a crowd of 20,000 persons, while just previously he had addressed the largest audience that ever had assembled in Memorial hall.

Mr. Bryan's appearance on the platform created a scene of the wildest enthusiasm, which was repeated when he was formally introduced by James Kilbourne, Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio several years ago.

Indiana Senate Favors "Drys."

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 24.—The county local option bill was passed by the senate Wednesday. The vote was 22 to 17, three Republicans voting with 14 Democrats against the measure and one being absent. The bill was immediately taken over to the house and was read and referred to a committee, which is expected to make a favorable report on it.

Lad Admits Big Theft.

Boston, Sept. 24.—The mystery surrounding the theft of securities representing $44,875 from the office of Walstein B. Chester, a lumber dealer, on August 20 last, was cleared up Wednesday when Alfred J. McGuinness, a 16-year-old Roxbury boy, was arrested and confessed.

Wood in Paper Making.

Just 3,962,660 cords of wood were used in the United States in the manufacture of paper pulp last year, twice as much as was used in 1899.

PROOF THAT ASIA AND AMERICA WERE ONCE JOINED TOGETHER
SHADED PORTION OF MAP SHOWS WHERE BERING STRAITS ARE TODAY AND WHERE LAND USED TO BE.

Seattle.—For the first time in history the proof of the fact that Siberia and Alaska were once joined along the Alaskan chain will be on exhibit at the big Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle next year. This fact, although surmised for a long time, has only been scientifically established in the past two or three years.

It was in 1906 B. M. Kinde and J. M. Harpell of the United States geological survey visited the valley of the Yukon. In the course of their search they discovered several species of fossil invertebrates which do not exist in any other portion of the continent of America, but which do exist in Siberia. This does point conclusively to a former junction of the two continents.

According to the recently issued report of these scientists, it was not known before that these fossils which they discovered existed on any portion of the continent of America.

A number of the best of these relics of former times, which are to be exhibited at the 1909 exposition in Seattle, were dug from the mud at the bottom of a river bed by the two scientists with the greatest difficulty and labor.

The real test
is in the baking.

Other Baking Powders may make broad claims, but when it comes to the production of real delicious biscuits, cakes and pastry.

CALUMET

proves its real worth. This is because of its much greater leavening power and the strict purity of its ingredients. It costs only a trifle more than the cheap and big can brands and much less than the "Trust Baking Powders."

FIRE STARTED BY A
GASOLINE FLATIRON

Called the Department to 53 Oakland Avenue This Forenoon—Put Out with Chemicals.

The fire department was called out about 9:40 this morning to attend a blaze which was started from a gasoline flatiron in the residence of John C. Hill at 53 Oakland avenue. The flames were put out with chemicals and the damage was not large.

Mrs. Hill was engaged in ironing when the telephone bell rang. While she was answering the call the iron set fire to the ironing-board. As soon as she discovered the blaze she communicated with the telephone central and the still alarm was transmitted to the station. Mrs. Hill had her hands and face burned while attempting to extinguish the flames during the few moments preceding the arrival of the department.—Daily Gazette, Sept. 23.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

HIS MOTHER'S HAND.

The purchase of the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln by an association and its forthcoming dedication raise the old question as to the forces that shaped Lincoln's life.

What made him great? Henry Watterson, the Louisville editor, says in his lecture on Lincoln that the man was inspired, just as Moses was inspired, which sounds well, but is indefinite.

Which was it—heredity, environment or will power—that shaped the crude Lincoln into greatness?

Plainly enough, it was all these forces and something more.

He had something from heredity—

that Kentucky mother.

He had something from his environment—hardships, obstacles, opposition.

He had much from his own strong will power, and his will power was shaped by his ideals. Where did Lincoln get his ideals?

Now we are getting down to the core of the matter.

When that wilderness mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, died in the log cabin in Spencer county, Ind., whether the family moved from Kentucky, she put her hand on the head of her wilderness boy, eight years of age, and said:

"I'm going away, my boy, but I want you to remember that your mother wants you to be a good and a useful man."

There was the beginning of Abraham Lincoln's ideal.

How many times in his after life that boy felt upon his head the hand of his dying mother and heard her words we may not know, but we do know that in the boy's heart was the high resolve to make his mother's dream of him come true.

Plain, simple of endurance, application—PLUCK A MOTHER'S HAND, A MOTHER'S WORDS—made Lincoln great.

Remember how Thomas Lincoln cut down a poplar tree and sawed out by hand the lumber with which he nailed together the rude coffin for Nancy Hanks Lincoln?

And by the side of the grave stood little Abraham, holding his little sister by the hand—honest, rugged, freckled, ungraciously a sorry beginning for a great life, but—

The touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that was still helped to fashion the boy into what he afterward became.

A mother's hand, a mother's voice—don't forget to look for these in every life.

TAFT AND PARTY WERE WELCOMED

HERE BY 5,000

ENTHUSIASTIC THROUG GREETED NEXT PRESIDENT THIS MORNING.

PAID RESPECTS TO BRYAN

And His Theories in a Good-Natured Fashion—Congressman Boutell Delivered Preliminary Address.

The special train of six coaches, including four Pullmans, a lounge, and a baggage car, and conveying William Howard Taft, the next President of the United States, and party on their 21-hour tour of Wisconsin, reached this city over the C. & N. W. road before nine o'clock and several minutes earlier than schedule time, this morning. A large number of Taft as he appeared speaking from St. Paul train at Janesville June 10, 1907.

Janesville businessmen boarded the train at depot and accompanied the visiting statesman as far as Madison, 5,000 at the Depot.

Some five thousand people gathered at the depot to welcome the Ex-Secretary of War and the crowd in its eagerness all but mobbed certain individuals who distributed Taft pictures and badges. To Congressman Henry S. Boutell of Chicago was assigned the rather thankless task of addressing the multitude during the first eight or ten minutes preceding the time set for Judge Taft's speech. The arrangement was deemed advisable owing to the fact that the train had

Fred W. Carpenter, Judge Taft's private secretary, who accompanied party. Mr. Carpenter is a nephew of Edwin F. Carpenter of this city and will be private secretary to President Taft after March 4th next, arrived earlier than expected, and many of the men from the factories had not had sufficient time to reach the scene. Moreover, the strenuous speaking campaign of the past few days had told on Judge Taft's voice, as the hearers were to learn for themselves during his opening words, and it was necessary to spare him as much as possible. The C. M. & St. P. railroad company's employees were disconcerted enough to the speakers and the crowd to run a switch-engine and freight cars by the "special" on at least two occasions, during the opening meeting.

Congressman Boutell's Address. Eight correspondents for the great metropolitan newspapers and press associations and well-known politicians from several states were among the passengers on the train. The rear platform of the last coach faced the Academy street crossing and Governor James Davidson and Congressman Henry Allen Cooper were among the distinguished visitors who "stood up with" the speakers. Congressman Boutell opened his address with some general references to the democratic candidate. Twelve years ago, he said, Mr. Bryan was offering his policies as a great boon for the producers.

They were the ones who were to profit by his platform, and he never said a word about the consumers. Times have changed and now his whole appeal is to the consumers. He ought to get somebody to teach him how to pronounce the word producer, like the children in "Little Boats" who, in preparation for a trip abroad, employed an old sailor to teach them pronunciation and propriety. She taught them to say papa, potatoes, printers, and princes, with their mouths pinched.

Universal Panaceas. He compared Bryan's course with that of Ben Butler when the latter was running for governor in Massachusetts. Speaking to the people of Berkshire county, Butler said: "Fellow Berkshire: When I look into your intelligent faces I hope you are prosperous but I fear you are not. I hope you are getting but 40 cents a bushel for potatoes. You ought to get 55 cents and when I am governor you will get 55 cents. In Suffolk county, which is largely populated by mechanics and mechanics, he said: 'I understand you are paying 45 cents for potatoes. When I am governor you'll only pay 40 cents.' Butler, while he fooled the people, never fooled himself, but Bryan has tried to fool both the people and himself. High prices for the farmers and low ones for the consumers! There never was a man who could so successfully fool part of the people part of the time. There are signboards which, gazed at straight ahead, tell us that Moonshine Bitters is the universal panacea. When we observe them from one angle we are informed that the dose is a sure cure for indigestion and from another, that it is the universal appetizer. Bryan's policies work the same way. Straight ahead they represent the universal panacea. From one angle they are good for the consumer and from the other they offer to cure all the ills of the producer. He offers one thing to one class and another, to another. The Republican party addresses itself to no class but to the best interests of the whole people.

Judge Taft's Remarks. At this juncture the man for whom the people were waiting emerged from the little group assembled about the doorway. There was a ringing cheer and a waving of hats and handkerchiefs as the big man—big in every sense of the term—stepped forward to deliver his address. Frankness, courage and tenacity tempered by a broad and genial optimism, and a serene self-confidence derived from long experience with great undertakings which demand a high order of executive ability, were some of the characteristics easily spelled out by those who, unable to catch his opening words, had to content themselves with watching the quick, alert movements and the fascinating facial play. Including those who stood before him, Judge Taft estimated that he had spoken to twenty acres of people this morning. His throat had not been entirely equal to the emergency.

Some Things Unforgotten. Twelve years ago, he said, Mr. Bryan had evolved the beautiful theory that since the crime of '73 had increased the value of gold and lowered that of silver, by changing around and issuing 60-cent dollars the government could help the debtor class to pay their debts. To wipe out half of one's obligations in that fashion would be a very comfortable arrangement. But the workmen, to whom this dazzling plan was offered, began to reason a little bit with the usual result—the theories suffered. They came to see that in the main they didn't have debts; that they belonged to the great creditor class; and that in its last analysis the proposition was to pay them in depreciated money. That meant strife with the employers for readjustments of the wage scale, strikes, and troublous times for everybody.

Mr. Bryan's memory doesn't go back to that time but it unfortunately happens that some of ours do. He says and he is in a better bound not to mention anything that is not contained in the 1908 democratic platform. The republican party recognizes no such limits on discussion.

After Period of Stress. We are just recovering from a panic—a period of depression which affected all of us, not so much the farmer, perhaps, but the workmen and businessmen have felt a hollow in prosperity. It followed twelve years of enormous expansion. We got spread out too far and couldn't get our legs together. As the result of revelations of the wrong-doings of great corporations, the confidence of men and institutions in the money to loan was shaken. Those men whose confidence makes the wheels go round are beginning to take heart again. To restore prosperity in any other business would you place affairs in charge of a man who for twelve years had been proposing remedies which, often in less than two years' time, you had repeatedly seen go wrong? Mr. Taft was still speaking as the train pulled out for Evansville.

The BRASS BOWL

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

(Copyright 1907, The Book-Mercantile Co.)

"And what's more," interposed the cabinman, eagerly, "I took you there, sir."

"Thank you. Furthermore, sleuth, you say that you followed me around town from seven o'clock until—"

"I said—" stammered the plain-clothes man, purple with confusion. "No matter. I didn't leave the Primordial until a quarter to eleven. But all this aside, as I understand it, you are asserting that, having given you all this trouble today, and knowing that you were after me, I deliberately hopped into a cab, 15 minutes ago, came up Fifth avenue at such breakneck speed that, this officer thought it was a runaway, and finally jumped out and ran upstairs here to fire a revolver three times, for no purpose whatsoever beyond bringing you gentlemen about my ears?"

Hickey's jaw sagged. The cabby ostentatiously covered his mouth with a huge red paw and made choking noises.

"Pass it up, earse, pass it up," he whispered, hoarsely.

"Shut yer trap," snapped the detective. "I know what I'm doin'. This crook's clever all right, but I got the kibosh on him this time. Lemme alone." He squared his shoulders, blustering to save his face. "I don't know why you done it—"

"Then I'll tell you," Mattland cut in, crisply. "If you'll be good enough to listen." And concisely narrated the events of the past 24 hours, beginning at the moment when he had discovered Anstey in Mattland Manor. Save that he substituted himself for the man who had escaped from Higgins and eliminated all mention of the gray girl, his statement was exact and convincing. As he came down to the moment when he had called up from the Bartholdi and heard mysterious sounds in his flat, substantiating his story by indicating the receiver that dangled useless from the telephone, even Hickey was staggered.

But not beaten. When Mattland ceased speaking the detective smiled superiority to such invention. "Very pretty," he conceded. "Yeh c'n tell it all to the magistrate to-morrow morning. Meantime yeh'll have time to think up a yarn explainin' how it comes that a crook like Anstey made three attempts in one day to steal some jewels, 'nd didn't get 'em. Where were they all this time?"

"In safe-keeping," Mattland lied, manfully, with a furtive glance toward the alcove.

"Whose?" pursued Mr. Hickey, truculently.

"Mine," with equanimity. "Seriously—sleuth—now you tryin' to make a charge against me of stealin' my own property?"

"Yeh done it for a blind, 'Nd that's enough. Officer, take this man to the station; I'll make the complaint."

The policeman hesitated, and at this juncture O'Hagan put in an appearance, lugging a heavy brown-paper bundle.

"Beg pardon, Mither Mattland, sor—"

"Well, O'Hagan?"

"The crowd at the dure, sor, is dis-persed," the janitor reported. "A couple av copz kom along an' fanned 'em. They're aslin' for the two av yoz," with a careless nod to the policeman and detective.

"Yeh heard what I said," Hickey answered the officer's look.

"I'm thinkin'," O'Hagan pursued, calmly ignoring the presence of the outsiders, "that these do be the worst that dommed that av the world stole off ye the day, sor. A lead brought ut at anyhow o'clock, sor, wid particular rayquest that ut be daylivered to ye at once. The paper's low, an'—"

"O'Hagan," Mattland ordered sharply, "undo that parcel. I think I can satisfy you now, sleuth. What kind of a suit did your luncenous acquaintance wear?"

"Gray."

"An' here ut is," O'Hagan announced, arraying the clothing upon a chair. "I've don't thing, aven down to the socks. And a note for ye, sor."

As he shook out the folds of the coat a square white envelope dropped to the floor; the janitor retrieved and offered it to his employer.

"Dear Mr. Mattland," he read aloud; "As you will probably surmise, my motive in thus restoring to you a portion of your property is not altogether unselfish by personal and selfish considerations. In brief, I wish to discover whether or not you are to be at home to-night. If not, I shall take pleasure in calling; if the contrary, I shall feel that in justice to myself I must forego the pleasure of improving an acquaintance begun under auspices so unfavorable. In either case, permit me to thank you for the use of your wardrobe—which, quaintly enough, has outlived its usefulness to me; a fat-headed detective named Hickey will tell you why—and in extend to you expression of my highest consideration. Believe me, I am enthusiastically yours, Daniel Anstey—Signed, added Hickey mechanically, his face working.

"Satisfied, sleuth?"

By way of reply, but ungraciously.

The Detective stepped forward and unlocked the handcuffs.

Mattland stood erect, smiling. "Thank you very much, sleuth. I shan't forget you." O'Hagan, tossing the janitor the keys from his desk, "you'll find some—ah—lomon-pap and root-beer in the buffet. This officer and his friends will no doubt join you in a friendly drink downstairs. Caddy, I want a word with you."

"Good morning, gentlemen. Good morning, sleuth."

And he showed them the door. "I shall be at your service, officer," he called over the janitor's shoulder, "at any time to-morrow morning. If not here, O'Hagan will tell you where to find me. And, O'Hagan!" The janitor fell back. "Keep them at least an hour," Mattland told him guardedly. "And say nothing."

The Irishman pledged his discretion by a silent look. Mattland turned back to the cabby.

"You did me a good turn, just now," he began.

"Don't mention it, sir; I've carried you hither before this evening, and—"

"The Detective Stepped Forward and Unlocked the Handcuffs."

"I said—" stammered the plain-clothes man, purple with confusion.

"No matter. I didn't leave the Primordial until a quarter to eleven. But all this aside, as I understand it, you are asserting that, having given you all this trouble today, and knowing that you were after me, I deliberately hopped into a cab, 15 minutes ago, came up Fifth avenue at such breakneck speed that, this officer thought it was a runaway, and finally jumped out and ran upstairs here to fire a revolver three times, for no purpose whatsoever beyond bringing you gentlemen about my ears?"

Hickey's jaw sagged. The cabby ostentatiously covered his mouth with a huge red paw and made choking noises.

"Pass it up, earse, pass it up," he whispered, hoarsely.

"Shut yer trap," snapped the detective. "I know what I'm doin'. This crook's clever all right, but I got the kibosh on him this time. Lemme alone." He squared his shoulders, blustering to save his face. "I don't know why you done it—"

"Then I'll tell you," Mattland cut in, crisply. "If you'll be good enough to listen." And concisely narrated the events of the past 24 hours, beginning at the moment when he had discovered Anstey in Mattland Manor. Save that he substituted himself for the man who had escaped from Higgins and eliminated all mention of the gray girl, his statement was exact and convincing. As he came down to the moment when he had called up from the Bartholdi and heard mysterious sounds in his flat, substantiating his story by indicating the receiver that dangled useless from the telephone, even Hickey was staggered.

But not beaten. When Mattland ceased speaking the detective smiled superiority to such invention. "Very pretty," he conceded. "Yeh c'n tell it all to the magistrate to-morrow morning. Meantime yeh'll have time to think up a yarn explainin' how it comes that a crook like Anstey made three attempts in one day to steal some jewels, 'nd didn't get 'em. Where were they all this time?"

"In safe-keeping," Mattland lied, manfully, with a furtive glance toward the alcove.

"Whose?" pursued Mr. Hickey, truculently.

"Mine," with equanimity. "Seriously—sleuth—now you tryin' to make a charge against me of stealin' my own property?"

"Yeh done it for a blind, 'Nd that's enough. Officer, take this man to the station; I'll make the complaint."

The policeman hesitated, and at this juncture O'Hagan put in an appearance, lugging a heavy brown-paper bundle.

"Beg pardon, Mither Mattland, sor—"

"Well, O'Hagan?"

"The crowd at the dure, sor, is dis-persed," the janitor reported. "A couple av copz kom along an' fanned 'em. They're aslin' for the two av yoz," with a careless nod to the policeman and detective.

"Yeh heard what I said," Hickey answered the officer's look.

"I'm thinkin'," O'Hagan pursued, calmly ignoring the presence of the outsiders, "that these do be the worst that dommed that av the world stole off ye the day, sor. A lead brought ut at anyhow o'clock, sor, wid particular rayquest that ut be daylivered to ye at once. The paper's low, an'—"

"Gray."

"An' here ut is," O'Hagan announced, arraying the clothing upon a chair. "I've don't thing, aven down to the socks. And a note for ye, sor."

As he shook out the folds of the coat a square white envelope dropped to the floor; the janitor retrieved and offered it to his employer.

"Dear Mr. Mattland," he read aloud; "As you will probably surmise, my motive in thus restoring to you a portion of your property is not altogether unselfish by personal and selfish considerations. In brief, I wish to discover whether or not you are to be at home to-night. If not, I shall take pleasure in calling; if the contrary, I shall feel that in justice to myself I must forego the pleasure of improving an acquaintance begun under auspices so unfavorable. In either case, permit me to thank you for the use of your wardrobe—which, quaintly enough, has outlived its usefulness to me; a fat-headed detective named Hickey will tell you why—and in extend to you expression of my highest consideration. Believe me, I am enthusiastically yours, Daniel Anstey—Signed, added Hickey mechanically, his face working.

"Satisfied, sleuth?"

By way of reply, but ungraciously.

"The Detective Stepped Forward and Unlocked the Handcuffs."

"I said—" stammered the plain-clothes man, purple with confusion.

floating folds of the portiere's hair; motionless. Still, a sharp and staccato clatter of hoofs that had risen in the street, might have drowned her voice.

"If you please—" he said again, loudly.

The silence rang abtinent in his ears; and he grew conscious of a sense of anxiety and fear stifling its intensity.

At length, striding forward, with a swift gesture he flung the hangings aside.

LEAGUE BASEBALL RESULTS.

New York, Sept. 24.—According to the official score of the New York Baseball club, the local Nationals won Wednesday's game from the champions at the Polo grounds by a score of 2 to 1. The game has been protested by the Chicago club, but President Pullman denied Wednesday night that he had taken any action in the matter, and cannot and will not do so until the case has been presented to him in the regular form.

The trouble arose in the ninth inning when the score was 1 to 1, New York was at the bat. Chicago had made a run in the fifth, Tinker hitting on a home run. McGraw's men had followed suit in the sixth with a run by Horag on Steinfield's error, Trengg's sacrifice and Donlin's single.

In the latter half of the ninth with two out, McCormick on third and Morke on first base, Bridwell smashed a single to center, scoring McCormick, the batter being declared safe at first. Just then the crowd, wild with excitement, ran on the field and Capt. Chance of the Chicago team claimed that Morke did not go to second.

The umpires are expected to make a report to President Pullman at once. The last game of the series between Chicago and New York is scheduled for Thursday, but should Wednesday's game have to be played over, a double-header will be in order, as the Chicago team goes to Brooklyn on Friday.

RAIN CHECKS FOREST FIRE

DAMAGE OF $1,000,000 NEAR CADILLAC, MICH.

Government is Watching Conflagrations Closely—Slight Downpour of Little Aid.

Cadillac, Mich., Sept. 24.—A heavy rainfall Wednesday in this vicinity has checked the forest fires which have been burning for about two months and have caused damage estimated at over $1,000,000. Losses in timber which have been burned and farm lands which have been eroded by the flames, many small lumber plants in this portion of the state have been destroyed.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 24.—A slight rainfall, the first in nearly two months, checked the forest fires. A big fire south of Ashland attracted general attention. No reports concerning it have been received. A small amount of rain fell between Spooner and Mason. Only minor losses to farmers were reported Wednesday.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The forest fires in various parts of the country are being watched very carefully by the government. The forestry service has already made arrangements for a complete report from an agent sent to personally investigate the situation in the northwest, and the officials of that bureau are paying close attention to unofficial reports as to the spread of the fires all along the line. The weather bureau Wednesday predicted that there probably will be a copious rainfall in the Mississippi valley region during the latter part of this week and that when the rain sets in it probably will continue for three or four days. A slight rainfall has already occurred in that section but, they say, not enough to materially assist in the fight against the fires.

San Chairo, Wis., Sept. 24.—Refugees from northern and eastern Wisconsin are flocking into San Chairo to escape forest fires that are making ravages through the region east of here. Smoke in this city is so dense that business places were compelled to close early Wednesday afternoon.

FRESHMAN CLASS IS LARGEST IN HISTORY

Of Deloit College—Has Officially Organized—Football Practice Begins.

Deloit, Wis., Sept. 24.—With the largest freshman class in its history, Deloit college opened yesterday afternoon at 4:30 with the formal convocation in the college chapel. The freshman class includes one hundred and forty-three students, of which all except thirty are men. It is not only the largest class that Deloit has ever had but is considered one of the finest, judging from the scholastic records which its members leave behind them.

The Convocation
The convocation was opened by an address of welcome given by President E. D. Eaton and followed by the convocation address delivered by Prof. E. C. Smith. His talk was upon "The Success of the American College in the Twentieth Century" and was a splendid discourse upon the college of today. He compared it with the early college, showing the many changes that have been made, he showed the increase in the number of college graduates and the advantageous position which they occupied among their fellow men.

Freshman Class
At the close of the convocation the freshman class adjourned to the auditorium in Science hall where the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
President—Marvin C. Golding, Easton, Minn.
Vice-president—Miss Grace Lyman, Deloit.
Secretary—Robert Decker, Deloit.
Treasurer—Miss Alice Helm, Deloit.

Football Practice
Prospects for a winning football team for the fall are very encouraging. For the past week the gridiron has been a scene of activities with Graham Foster, the new coach, putting the men through some stiff practice. About twenty-five men have already showed up for football and are getting down to business in the game.

Signal Practice
The first signal practice was held this afternoon at Keop field and the men handled themselves very well. Among those who are predicted as members of the varsity, are Clinton Osborn of Rockford, the young quarterback who had such a successful career at Rockford last year; Strang, last year's guard; Kunkson at half-back; Elliott at center; Pringle at half.

It was necessary to cut away some of the fenders on the boat and to remove several piles from the draw to release the vessel. The G. & M. Co. will be asked to settle for the damage to the bridge.

PAID $15 FINE FOR HORSEWHIPPING BOY

Robert Barless of the Town of La Prairie Was Also Given a Severe Lecture.

Robert Barless, age 19, appeared in municipal court this afternoon and pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery on 17-year-old Earl A. Louisa of the town of La Prairie on Sept. 19. It is alleged that he cruelly punished the little boy with a horse-whip for some trifling misconduct. Judge Field gave Barless a severe lecture and said that if it were not for the anxiety of attorneys on both sides to have the matter settled without undue harshness, he would impose a severe fine with a jail sentence, perhaps, added thereto. As it was, he assessed Barless $15 and costs amounting to $4.00 with the alternative of 20 days in jail.

Action for Damages
Before a jury this afternoon Atty. J. J. Cunningham for the plaintiff and Atty. R. C. Bulley of Whitewater and T. S. Jailed for Drunkenness

A STANDARD OF COFFEE

My idea always was and is, that the consumers of coffee are the real judges. They don't know and don't care how a coffee is described, nor how it grades, all they know is, how it drinks. If Golden Blend coffee was not the best coffee in Janesville at the price it would not be sold in one-fourth of all the homes of Janesville. Even the poorest coffee will have some sales if it is pushed as hard as coffee is pushed in this city. You who have been buying coffee from this and that source and paying as high as 30 and 35c a pound possibly have not tried Golden Blend and do not know that it is a standard of excellence and that people who have been using it for the past six years still use it in the face of the fact that they have been solicited by at least a dozen coffee solicitors, or wagon men, or others many times during that period.

As an expert, I know this: That in coffee, as in anything else there is a standard of what good coffee should be, and that nine-tenths of all the people in Janesville have about the same taste for coffee. When I started in business about seven years ago I blended a coffee and named it Golden Blend and the quality of that coffee has never varied. Golden Blend is a standard of what good coffee should be and it will suit the taste of almost all the people in Janesville. There is more Golden Blend sold in Janesville than any other two or three kinds of coffee in the city. There are sections in this town where I can walk the street for a whole block and find every house in the block using Golden Blend. If you will try a pound of Golden Blend upon my recommendation and it does not exactly suit your taste, I will blend specially for you, etc., etc.
